PLEASANTON, CALIFORNIA

VOL. 89, NO. 48 FRIDAY, MARCH 7, 1975

Showers likely in the valley through Saturday. Lows in the 40s. Highs both days mid 50s to lower 60s. Winds mostly southerly 10 to 20 mph increasing today.

Sewer review promised

PLEASANTON — A promise that Pleasanton's sewer situation would be carefully reviewed and the possibility of federal money for an overpass over Interstate 680 were perhaps the most important developments that came out of the city council's trip to Washington, D.C.

Seven city officials were in the nation's capital Saturday through Wednesday to attend the National League of Cities conference and to meet with federal legislators and administrators on the most pressing problems facing this community.

Perhaps as important as the sessions on those problems was the council's opportunity to make contacts with those federal officials who will ultimately make the decisions and to gain a greater understanding of the inter-relationship of the federal government with state and regional governments.

The Pleasanton delegation, which consisted of Council Members Joyce LeClaire, Bob Philcox, Ed Kinney and Bill Herlihy, City Manager Bill Edgar, Assistant to the City Manager Jim Walker and City Attorney Ken Scheidig, was unanimous in its assessment of the trip as "extremely productive".

Pleasanton representativ met twice with Mark Pissano, es director of the Environmental Protection Agency's Water Planning Division, and several aides to discuss this city's sewer situation.

The question the local officials asked was how the city can reconcile environmental constraints with its legal obligations. The officials presented a detailed report of Pleasanton's obligations.

The EPA officials asked for supplementary information and assured the city representatives they would review that information in detail and fully evaluate it brfore making any decision on the amount of additional sewer capacity this area will be allowed in view of the air quality in the valley.

Edgar said Pissano was concerned that "cities maintain their fiscal responsibilities" but he also expressed a concern over the potential "stockpiling" ot tract maps.

Herlihy reported there is a possibility of obtaining federal funds for the construction of either an overpass at Stoneridge Drive and Interstate 680 or an interchange at West Las Positas Boulevard and 680. That possibility was discussed at a meeting with General Benjamin Davis of the Department of Transportation who said, if the state is willing to contribute 30 percent, the federal government might put up the other 70 percent.

City officials have been attempting to connect the east and west portions of the city via such an overpass ever since 680 was constructed. That possibility will be further explored with the California Department of Transportation.

City officials also met with representatives of the United States Postal Service to discuss the curbside mailbox issue. The results of that meeting were not encouraging for the city, which has an ordinance prohibiting curbside boxes, but the USPS did agree to send a representative to a council meeting to explain their position more fully.

Overall, city officials agreed the trip was well worth the approximately $5,000 expenditure. "They gained an understanding of our situation," LeClaire said and Kinney added, "It established our credibility as a city which thinks through the issues before asking for help."

Herlihy added the trip was invaluable in terms of "long-term benefits and the continuity of contacts" with the federal government.

Edgas said he believed the trip was important because it allowed the city to establish "political and administrative contacts", it "familiarized city officials with the workings of Washington" and it "expanded our knowledge in the areas where we have problems."

Registration at Foothill

In order to get a more precise focus on the number of students, and their backgrounds, coming to Foothill High School next September, registration was held for incoming freshmen Wednesday. Among the hundreds of eighth graders filling out forms was Lillian Durham, right. She is being assisted here by teacher Nancy Van der Haeghen, as Mrs. Antia Durham looks on. Lillian will be a part of third freshman class to enter Foothill, bringing enrollment up to approximately 1,000. (Times Photo)

March 15 'D' day for teachers

PLEASANTON — March 15 is the deadline for school districts to send out termination notices to teachers who may have to be dropped because of economic necessity.

But this will not necessarily be the case in the Pleasanton Elementary School District, though trustees went into executive session during the "personnel" section of Wednesday's meeting.

Additionally, Pleasanton trustees have scheduled a work session for Wednesday, March 19 at the District Educational Center. The Certificated Employees Council of PESD is expected to present their salary and benefits package at the next regular meeting, now scheduled for Wednesday, April 9.

The Pleasanton CEC is chaired by Jim Kimball and Joe Goodrich is salary sub-panel leader. Other members of the negotiating team are Tom Zach, Marv Vargas, Jim Kenrick, Norma Black and Charles Tankersley.

Trustees Wednesday night tabled action on a controversial collective bargaining legislation resolution, asking that staff rewrite portions of it. A second resolution on school finance legislation was approved.

Board members also tabled action to approve a contract for legal services, on a 25 hours per month retainer basis, with Keith Breon of Portola Valley. Breon is seeking a fee of $1,000 for 25 hours of service monthly.

On two other personnel items, Carl Birckley, a teacher in the district the past 21 years, announced his retirement, and Inez Griffith, with 25 years service, asked for early retirement. She has taught for a total of 33 years.

In other business, finai approval was given a claim for damages policy, reports on students' views of TAG and various classes at Pleasanton Elementary were presented, trustees learned that Dr. Guy Clark and John Lanto would be among those representing local districts at Friday afternoon meeting on school finances at Chabot in Hayward and Amador Valley Teachers Association invited board members to an annual recognition dinner set for March 18 at The Rancher in Livermore.

The Amador Valley Joint High School District has asked Pleasanton, Sunol and Murray to a joint meeting on graduation requirements and curriculum.

An in-depth report by Dr. David Carlisle, director of research and development, on district boundaries indicated the district will find it necessary to move students in 1975-76.

Carlisle says the area north of the Arroyo del Valle is generally overcrowded while the area south has "space available." Several concerns were noted, including having primary students and 8th grade students on the same campus, late dismissal for students in grades 1-5 and possible disruption of babysitting by older brothers and sisters of primary students.

Six options were presented by Carlisle . . . from maintaining the status quo to having all fifth graders in the Del Prado area attend Pleasanton Elementary.

Court denies city's New Town writ tactic

Stating "I don't feel this qualifies as a preliminary injunction case Alameda County Superior Court Judge George Phillips denied the City of Livermore's request for a writ of mandate against Alameda County yesterday afternoon.

The county was indirectly representing Harlan Geldermann, who hopes to develop the controversial Las Positas New Town northwest of Livermore. The county planning commission and board of supervisors have already approved general plan amendments that would allow Geldermann to go ahead with his plan.

Livermore, represented by attorney Maurice Engel, asked for the injunction on six grounds.

The city's case centered around three main contentions: One, the county failed to follow its own principles in amending the general plan; two, that the board of supervisors had passed an illegal number of GPA's during 1974 and, three, that the system of accountability in the decision making structure had been lost.

Alameda County Deputy Counsel Thomas Fennone based his case on the fact that a preliminary injunction can only be granted if "irrefragable harm" can be shown. He also contended that the county had complied with both state law and county guidelines.

Judge Phillips believed that the case "certainly has meritorious grounds for litigation" but that sufficient grounds for a preliminary injunction had not been shown. He did comment, however, "it's a close case."

Livermore claimed that imminent harm would come to the city as Geldermann took his plans through the approval process.

Engel felt that the legality of the board's action was still in question and that no further action should be taken until the case goes to trial.

"We seek to enjoin subsequent action so that we can test the legality of the original action," Engel concluded.

Thomas Smith, who also spoke on the county's side, said that a preliminary injunction at this time "is tantamount to killing this project." —By Clay Kallam

'Newtown' view due from ABAG

BERKELEY — Harlan Geldermann's proposed Las Positas New Town will be the subject of an extensive review by the Association of Bay Area Governments' Regional Planning Committee at its March 12 meeting.

The committee firs. reviewed the project, which would ultimately create a new community of 40,000 to 45,000 residents in the Las Positas Valley north of Livermore, in September. At that time, an ABAG Review Panel determined the proposed New Town "was of regional significance and appeared potentially to conflict with some regional policies."

Since September, the Alameda County Board of Supervisors has approved a general plan amendment which would allow residential development in the Las Positas Valley and the Local Agency Formation Commission has removed that valley from Livermore's sphere of influence. Because of those two major developments, ABAG has decided to make another review of the project.

The session will begin at 3 p.m. Wednesday, March 12, in the Gaslight Room of the Hotel Claremont.

Geldermann's representatives will present the project concept followed by a question and answer period. At 5:30 p.m., there will be a dinner break and at 7 p.m., the City of Livermore and other who are opposed to the project will detail the reasons for their opposition.

For further information concerning the hearing, contact Vivian Brown, Plan and Project Review Division, ABAG, at 841-9730.

Intent 9-year old

Alisal School in Pleasanton was one of only two schools in entire valley to be selected to take part in National Assessment of Education testing of 9, 13 and 17 - year olds. Sixty 9 - year olds, including this very studious young lady, took the series of tests covering range of elementary subjects at Alisal. 17 - year olds at San Ramon High School were also tested. The tests took one hour and results will be compared according to regions, race and sex. The testing is a project of the State Department of Education. (Times Photo)

Pleasanton set for recycle hub

Can - DO is coming to the valley.

The first aluminum recycling center for use by the public to be located in Eastern Alameda County will be launched in Pleasanton next Thursday, and be open every Thursday afternoon thereafter.

Kaiser Aluminum and Chemical Corporation will operate the Can - DO mobile unit from its Center for Technology on Sunol Boulevard in Pleasanton. The nearest such center in the past has been functioning out of Union City.

Recycling centers accept flattened, all - aluminum cans, cleaned and flattened foil and tv dinner trays at a profit of 15 cents per pound to the collector. The real profit however comes in the salvage of millions of pounds of aluminum for re - use throughout the nation. The Pleasanton Can - DO Center will operate Thursday afternoons from 1 until 4. Entrance will be onto the Kaiser Center's grounds via the private road at the north end of that property. Everyone participating in next Thursday's grand opening of the Can - DO Center will receive — in addition to that 15 cents per pound of aluminum — a cold soft drink, courtesy of Kaiser. Collectors are cautioned to take their cleaned salvaged aluminum only to the mobile center, and only on the days and hours specified.

The Pleasnton center is the 54th opened in the western states. Last year more than $1.3 million was paid out for 210 million aluminum cans.

Garbage site search shifts

Pleasanton's three - year search for expanded garbage disposal facilities has shifted to an industrial area on the east side of the city. The new proposal represents a dramatic departure from the original thrust which would have developed a transfer station on Vineyard Avenue, close by the existing dump site.

"We feel this is an ideal location, well removed from any dwellings, and with access on streets not now used by the public," explained Wm. Hirst, attorney for Pleasanton Garbage Service, Inc. The company is proposing to acquire 7.5 acres on Busch Road, which is reached via the easterly extension of Valley Avenue, well within the grounds owned by Kaiser Sand and Gravel. The surrounding area is now occupied by a variety of heavy industrial operations.

"We also anticipate that the larger transfer trucks would be able to leave the site using El Charro Road for direct access to Route 580," Hirst told The Times. It was the flow of those big trucks and the numbers of smaller, privately owned vehicles onto the transfer site that helped raise some public resistance to the Vineyard Avenue site. The county has also been cool to the transfer site operation on Vineyard, contending "a site closer to the center of the city" and with better public access was desirable for that kind of function.

The transfer site "will extend the availability of dumping privileges in the Pleasanton area indefinitely," Hirst explained. Pleasanton Garbage has contended in the past that its existing Vineyard Avenue dump site will soon be depleted if no back - up capacity is provided.

The transfer station allows garbage to be brought in by company trucks and by private vehicles, dumped onto a huge cement pad, and then pushed by tractor onto larger trucks which then haul the debris to a dump site well out of the city — in this case the Wm. Ralph dump on Vasco Road east of Livermore.

Hirst said the covered area needed for the transfer station would measure 60 by 110 feet and "represent a considerable investment." An existing metal building on the Kaiser grounds would be used for equipment storage. Hirst expects the proposal to come before the Pleasanton Planning Commission on March 20.

Assemblyman Beck was the valley's first

Sorry, Assemblyman - elect Floyd Mori, you weren't the valley's first after all.

The Times, along with just about everyone else, has been assuming that Mori's victory resulted in "the first state legislator to come from this valley." Turns out that Mori is number two in that parade. Lou Gardella, a lifetime Livermore resident and former mayor of that city, called us with the corrected info.

"George Beck was elected to the Assembly about 1912," Gardella recalled. "He was a feisty old son - of - a - gun even then, but a nice gentleman, besides. He served about two terms, then lost out when he tried for the State Senate."

Beck was a Democrat, owned a downtown Livermore "general store" that was later acquired by Gardella. A granddaughter, the former Margaret Beck Harms, made her home on Foothill Road in Pleasanton before she recently re - married and moved from the valley.

Assemblyman Mori to resign Monday

PLEASANTON — Assemblyman Floyd Mori will resign as mayor of Pleasanton at Monday's city council meeting.

The council will appoint a new member to fill the vacancy created by Mori's election to the Assembly and will also elect a new mayor at Monday's meeting.

The appointment is expected to go either to Park and Recreation Commissioner Ken Mercer or Planning Commisioner Roger McLain (who has run unsuccessfully for council three times), political observors believe.

Councilman Ed Kinney appears to have the inside track in the struggle for the mayoralty, although, at week's end, that was still unsettled.

Environment report urged

Land - use changes that would allow residential development on two nine - acre parcels that had been earmarked for schools are of sufficient impact to require detailed environmental reports, the director of housing and community development for City of Pleasanton has determined.

One of the parcels is located on the east side of Valley Trails Drive, immediately west of the terminus with Valley Trails Park. The other nine - acre parcel is south of Fairlands Drive, 150 feet east of the Churchill Drive.

Both areas would be designated to "medium density residential" under the proposed change. The Pleasanton Elementary School District is abandoning a number of school sites projected earlier, but that are no longer required for classrooms because of the city's reduced growth rate.

A third project that will not require an environmental impact report in the city's judgement, involves Phase II construction at the Pleasanton Sports and Recreation Park east of Hopyard Road, between Valley Avenue and the Arroyo Mocho Canal. That 15 - acre parcel will receive sprinkling and drainage systems, and turf for softball and soccer.

The public has until March 19 to file any written comments on the decisions relative to these environmental impact decisions.

Hit-run suspect charged

OAKLAND — Charges were filed Tuesday by the Alameda County District Attorney's office against George H. Turner following Sunday's fatal auto accident in Pleasanton in which 18-year-old Paula Marie Howell was killed instantly.

The complaint alleges vehicular manslaughter and felony drunk driving.

According to police, Turner's Dodge pickup truck smashed into Howell's Corvair at Valley Avenue just east of Blackbird Way shortly before 2 a.m. as Howell drove home from work.

Howell, a student at Chabot College who moved to the Valley from Washington with her parents some six months ago, was killed instantly, while Turner was rushed to Valley Memorial Hospital with face and chest injuries.

Turner, listed Wednesday in satisfactory condition by a hospital spokeswoman, will be arraigned in Pleasanton Justice Court following his hospital release.

Dangerous Sunol Blvd. area eyed

PLEASANTON — A dangerous section of Sunol Boulevard, which has been the scene of numerous near-accidents, may be getting some help from Alameda County.

That intersection is especially hazardous because Sunol narrows to one southbound lane prior to that intersection and cars continuing past Sycamore must veer onto the shoulder to avoid cars which are tuning left onto Sycamore.

Sorensen said a survey crew is currently at work on the intersection to update the county's information. A report on the feasibility and costs of a left-turn lane will probably not be completed until late summer, he added.

If the project goes ahead, it will most likely be done jointly with the City of Pleasanton since the road to the south and north of that intersection is within the city limits.

Governor names 18 to serve on malpractice commission

SAN FRANCISCO — State Bar of California President Brent M. Abel has announced the appointment of 18 persons statewide to the newly created State Bar Advisory Commission on Medical Malpractice.

The commission was created by the Board of Governors of the State Bar of California at its February meeting and will be looking at some specific areas of law where changes might help patients gain rightful compensation for medical injuries without unduly prejudicing the health profession or the insurance industry.

In addition to lawyers, the commission includes physicians and others not involved in the legal field. Among the lawyers on the board, some represent insurance companies, some represent claimants, some represent health professionals.

According to Abel, "This commission will explore the issues and suggest remedies, including possible legislation."

Among the remedies to be considered by the commission are:

— The law of "informed consent", where the patient must understand the dangers of a treatment before he "signs away" his rights to payment if injured.

— A 90 to 120 day notice, from the patient to the physician, before the patient may file suit. As it is now, the patient may file without notice. The change would give the physician and his insurer time to check and see if the claim should be paid without suit.

— A new procedure which would permit deferred payments to the patient over his lifetime. As it is now, this can only be done with the consent of both sides.

The State Bar of California is funding the work of the commission with an initial grant of $5,000.

Today is women's special day

Tomorrow is a special day in a special year.

It is International Women's Day in a year designated as International Women's Year by the United Nations.

March 8 is the 67th anniversary of the day in 1908 when women garment workers in New York City marched to protest their working conditions.

That date has since been celebrated in other countries, thus relegating the event to international importance.

There are no events planned locally to mark Saturday's significance but a march and rally have been called for 11 a.m. on that date starting in front of Oakland City Hall.

The celebration is being organized by the International Women's Day Coalition, a group of lawyers, labor women and veterans.

The march will culminate in a rally at 1 p.m. at 13th and Fallon streets.

Other events are planned for Saturday on the University of California, Berkeley campus and in San Francisco.

Radio programs of interest to women will be broadcast Saturday morning over Berkeley FM station KPFA.

Get the most out of that used envelope

Keep used envelopes and use the reverse side as scratch paper. They're especially good for grocery lists; you can store coupons on the inside.

You can keep these envelopes stored inside a larger used envelope. — A.P., Madison, Wis.

Cagey cleanup

After meals wipe leftover food from plates with paper napkins that were used for the meal. These can also be used to clean out greasy pots and pans.

This saves gallons of water used in rinsing off dishes and possibly prevents clogged drains. — B.P., Marquette, Mich.

Pilot procedure

The pilot light of a gas stove is important for safety but it does use a bit of energy. Try using that normally lost heat to your advantage.

To heat just one roll or a piece of pie, put it over the pilot light in a small pan for about an hour. Also, after the coffee is cooked, you can put the pot over the light to keep it warm. — M.W., York, Neb.

On sports

The Skipper presses on

Mike Zampa

A week ago a call was placed to Skip Mohatt at Amador Valley High School. It was the day before Amador's first game in the North Coast Baske'ball Tournament, and the caller, a newspaper writer, needed an advance story.

A good peg for the article seemed to be Amador senior guard Rich Hall. He has played in every game for the Dons, and played well. Hall fails to draw the notoriety of some of his teammates however, and the time seemed right for an unsung hero piece.

As Mohatt picked up the receiver, Hall-questions were brewing in the reporter's mind. Before he could lay them on the coach, however, Mohatt interceded.

"If you're looking for a good lead-in for your story," he said; "wh ot use Hall?"

With two minds clicking on the same wave length (odd for coaches and writers) the advance was wrapped up effortlessly. The familiar problem of tagging a routine story with a new slant was solved.

Mohatt's advice and insight in that direction was not surprising. In his school days the Amador coach was a journalist. In fact he worked with Glenn Dickey, who, Mohatt says, isn't nearly as acerbic as his columns.

If the two still correspond, they probably lament their failure at finding legitimate work, Mohatt coaching games, Dickey discoursing on them.

The point is that Mohatt is a discriminating student of the sporting press, buoyed by his journalistic backround. That is good news and bad news for reporters who must deal with him He appreciates the needs of jock writers and usually is available to fill the air with quotes. Mohatt bristles quickly though at journalistic buffoonery. He can come down hard on critics too.

Last year he smoldered when a Times writer ignored the Amador title clinching to dwell on the team's mediocre play... "I guess I wrote a bad story," the writer admitted to Mohatt afterwards. "It wasn't bad," Skip answered; "It was atrocious."

Mohatt did relent though, and wound up buying his critic a drink.

Regardless of the dangers, reporters seek out the Amador coach constantly. That's not an endorsement for Mohatt's repartee, simply a byproduct of the Dons' success. Newspaper people love winners.

The Amador school phones light up daily with folks on the other end wanting Skip's views of zone defenses and the 10 top cheer leaders in the EBAL.

His post-game revelling is always interrupted in the retelling of Amador victories. Once it got so bad, assistant coach Don Underwood had to step in. "You guys better let him go," Underwood warned; "He hasn't eaten dinner yet."

With the Dons involved in post-season championships for a second straight year, Mohatt is skipping more and more meals. "It looks like a press convention in here," he cracked after Amador's first-round win in the NCS play last week.

Out of town writers chased down quotable stuff while the nearby press fretted that all the secrets would be used up.

Which is folly.

Mohatt will always have readable answers. He saves them for the right questions though. In a less unobtrusive way, the Don coach is like L.A. Dodger pitcher Mike Marshall. The big reliever turns down writers when the queries "don't interest him." Mohatt has done the same when the tac is too obvious, too vague, or too speculative. "Answer it yourself," he's liable to suggest.

The role of high school coach as news source is a difficult one to play. There are delicate feelings to protect, those of players parents and administrators. Say too much and you injure someone in a close-knit community. Too little however leaves the writer with a bland story. This makes a coach vulnerable, Mohatt claims.

But usually he manages to satisfy writers without stepping on toes. It is a dangerous tight-rope.

Mohatt, like any public figure, has drawn detractors in the press. There are several he refuses to deal with. The condition is typical in sports. Coaches assume a mother-role, protecting their players from outside dangers.

Writers on the other hand are serving the reading public, sometimes at the expense of a subject. There are strong arguments that the pursuit of truth in the sports page ought to be tempered with more compassion. Especially when the atheletes are still young. That's for another debate at another time though.

Until someone clears up that dilemma, the opportunity is there for coach and writer to be at odds. The coach can react by refusing reporters. The writer usually decides to steer clear. The end result is that a team loses publicity, the readers, a story.

Being a good coach, and at least a token journalist once , Mohatt knows this. He works, with occassional exception, to keep the communication lines open.

A few days back he interrupted an interview to point out an objection. "You did something wrong on a quote in that last story," Mohatt claimed. "But I can't remember what it was."

Then, suddenly, "Say — have you seen Front Page yet?"

Giants top Dons in opener

OAKLAND — Amador Valley High found another way to lose a tournament of champions opener at the Oakland Coliseum last night, dropping a 53-47 decision to Redwood of Larkspur.

The Dons found a second-straight defeat in this classic bitter to take, and staged a brief, but breathtaking rally in the final half minute.

They drew to within two points of the Giants with 29 seconds to play, but were forced to foul to get the ball back. Redwood hit six free throws from there to the finish to reach tonight's semi-final against Berkeley.

Amador coach Skip Mohatt expressed concern before the game that his team would tire in the late stages. That may have been part of the problem against disciplined Redwood, but an icy shooting touch was just as critical.

Amador hit just 35.8 per cent from the floor and missed on a number of cripple shots. The Dons hauled in 12 rebounds off the offensive boards but could convert only four of them to field goals.

Jeff Hine was the only effective shooter, hitting on 54 per cent of his shots and scoring a team-high 16 points.

For the second straight game, Redwood's Jack Hagler was the undoing of the Dons. The 6-2 forward gunned in 22 points Saturday night in a 41-39 win over Amador.

Last night he scored 17, 16 of those in the second half.

Hounded by Hine, who played tight defense, and by a spell of miserable shooting, Hagler scored just a single free throw in the first two qaurters. He went 0 for 5 from the field, all perimeter jumpers.

The slender senior took charge in the third and fourth periods, hitting crucial shots that kept Amador at a safe distance.

Besides his offensive output, Hagler tied with center Steve Trobbe for the team lead in rebounds with eight.

Trobbe, 6-6, scored five points and was outplayed by Amador center Andy Finn.

Finn scored 11 and pulled in 11 rebounds. He failed to convert on several follow-up attempts, however, and wound up shooting 33 per cent from the floor.

Redwood received additional support from Dave Del Grande with 12 points and Mark Kilmer, 11.

Amador led the game for three quarters, jumping ahead early, 7-2. The teams were tied at 34 with 6:34 to play in the game when Redwood went to work.

The Giants outscored the Dons 13-5 to lead 47-39 with 1:08 to play.

Hine's free throw and an Ed Costello jumper from 20 feet, cut the margin to 47-42.

With 29 seconds to play, Hine stoked the Coliseum crowd by following in a missed shot and drawing a foul. That cut Redwood's lead to two points, 47-45.

The Dons were forced to foul Redwood's Gary Soregen and with 0:21 to play, he calmly tanked both ends of a one-and-one to put Redwood safely up by four.

Hagler and Kilmer each converted two foul shots to put it out of Amador's reach.

The Dons Steve Mohatt sunk a desperation jump shot at the buzzer.

Redwood held a 31-27 edge in rebounding, building most of that margin in the second half.

The Giants, despite their reputation for calm and poise, threw the ball away 13 times to Amador's seven.

They failed to buckle however, when Hagler suffered through his first half shooting miseries. Del Grande pumped in six, Trobbe and Kilmer, four each and the Dons led just 20-17 at inter mission.

As a result of the loss the Dons will move into the consolation bracket. They face Lincoln of S.F., which lost to Berkeley, this afternoon at 4:30.

'Jackets sting Lincoln, Herd dumps O'Dowd

OAKLAND — Berkeley superstar Gene Ransom poured in five points in overtime as the Yellowjackets slipped by Lincoln of San Francisco, 68-66, last night in an opening round tournament of champions game.

The victory boosts Berkeley into the semi-finals this evening against Redwood of Larkspur.

As always, Ransom will be a key factor in that game.

The 5-9 guard scored 20 points last night, hitting eight of 19 field goal tries.

His 23-foot jumper with 17 seconds left in regulation play knotted the game at 63. It ended that way when David Chenier missed a desperation jumper at the buzzer.

Ransom hit two field goals and a free throw in overtime , the final point accounting for Berkeley's winning margin.

Two other players were vital to the Berkely cause, Dennis Listenbee and Ricky Scott. Scott had 15 points and 12 rebounds , and Listenbee scored 14.

They combined for 20 points in the first two quarters to give the 'Jackets 36-28 halftime lead.

Lincoln rallied in the second half behind a trio of players, and led by as much as eight, 53-45.

Derrick McCray was the leading Mustang with 20 points and 16 rebounds. Gary Moore scored 17, and Ricky Lee had 16 with nine rebounds.

Lee hit three consecutive outside jump shots in the fourth quarter to keep Lincoln on top, 63-59.

Ransom scored the next four points to necessitate the overtime.

Bill Cartwright scored a tournament record 53 points as Elk Grove crushed Bishop O'Dowd 90-72 in another first round game.

The 7-1 senior center smashed a six-year old single game mark of 42 points held by Berkeley's Phil Chenier.

Cartwright is within easy reach of the three-game record of 94 points held by Lincoln's Ed McPheeter.

The next high-scorer for Elk Grove was Bill Job with 18 points. He hit 8 of ten shots from the floor for the Thundering Herd. Cartwright hit 23 of 37 and pulled down 20 rebounds.

O'Dowd tried to counter Elk Grove's awesome heighth with a non-stop running game. It was like staging a track meet in the shadows of a sky-scraper.

The Dragons walked off at halftime frustrated and exhausted.

They had closed a 20-11 deficit to 21-19 late in the first period.

Cartwright asserted himself again, however, and sparked the Herd to a 47-27 high water mark just before halftime.

With Job pumping in three straight field goals at the end of the second quarter, Elk Grove went to the locker room leading 51-35.

The Herd shot an improbable 70 per cent from the field during the first two quarters.

Cartwright hit twelve of 19 shots during that stretch and finished the half with 27 points. He had 10 rebounds.

Job had 16 points at the break and made all seven of his field goal attempts.

Mori should stick to his principles

It was, by any political measure, one of the more startling victories in South County memory. A political novice, of Japanese extraction, refusing to bow to the dictums of organized labor or the passions of various liberated elements, daring to qualify his support of "women's rights" and undaunted in his stand against abortion — and still winning that 15th Assembly seat by a margin of almost two - to - one.

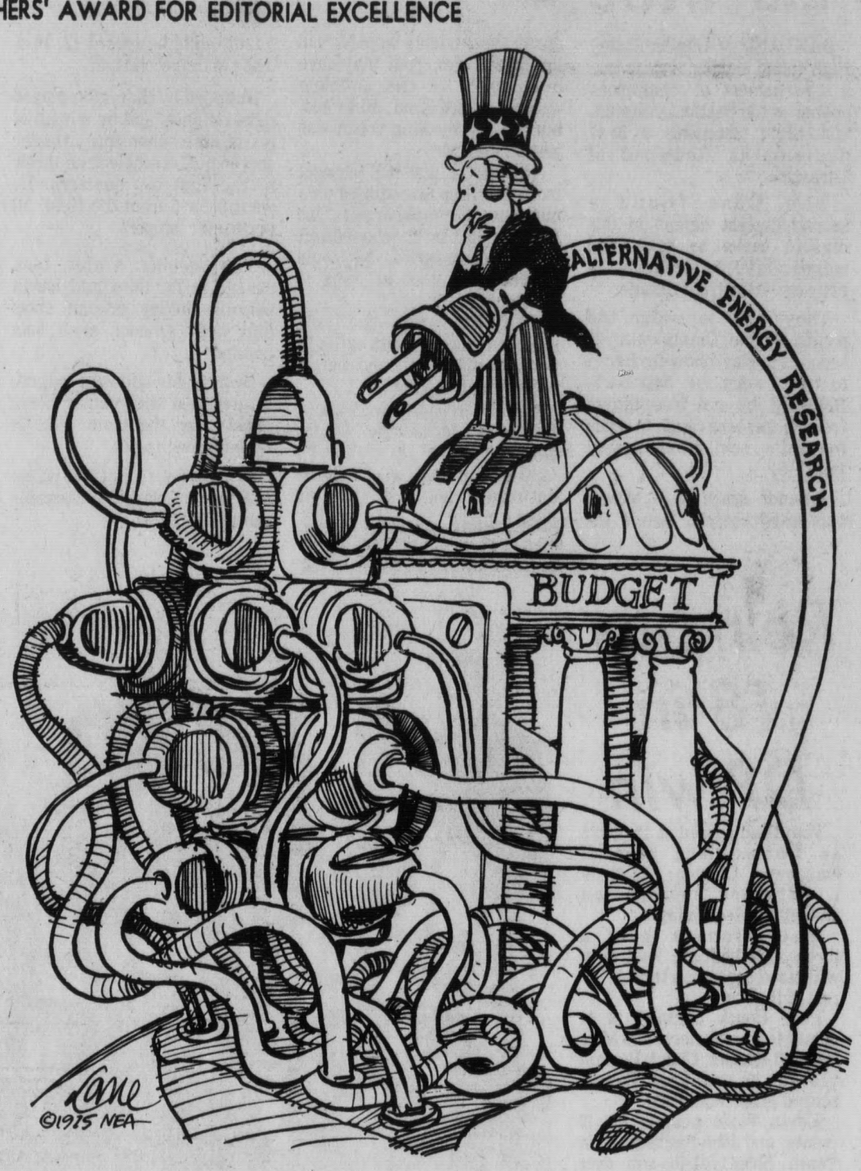
Floyd Mori is no paragon of public servitude; he is not even the answer to every voter's dreams. He is simply a man who dares to prick some of the old political baloons, to venture where no smart Democrat has dared to tread.

As the candidate from the largest party but the smallest city within that vast 15th District, Mr. Mori could have guaranteed his final election by giving "the right answers" to the Central Labor Council, the defenders of "equal rights for women," and the die - hard liberal dissidents. He need not have won them over, just pacified them a little. But the economic's professor from Pleasanton declined to do any of this. He stuck by his beliefs, and 23,556 voters throughout the labor - dominated South County stuck by him. It was a most remarkable happening.

Floyd Mori may have taught the old pros something about the new kind of politics. The people in turn taught him something about the new standard for public service. A candidate, any candidate, does score that kind of victory simply through "the great Mormon push;" neither can it be explained away as "a conservative shift from Puccio to Mori," any more than it can be written off as "a clear case of the Democratic Party's superiority in registrations."

There are those among us who have a very hard time accepting the fact that people are tired of the old politics, and the old political games. They want a new kind of public servant, and right now Floyd Mori is a man who best exemplifies that standard.

It is a lesson that the new 15th District assemblyman should not forget. He won that tremendous following on Tuesday because of who he is and what he stands for. Floyd Mori will serve his constituency and his state well if he sticks by those principles.



And what about us?

Was Tuesday the day we finally rejected "the old negativism" in favor of something more solid for the valley? A carefully reading of those results suggests just that.

Livermore approved not one but TWO school measures, and then added a "conservative" to the unified school board just for good measure. Dublin and the Murray Elementary District approved more dollar tax dollars for the classrooms, and sifted through the candidates to come up with the two most solid contenders in that bunch. Pleasanton joined in much that same thrust to solidify rather than disrupt the educationalestablishment.

It is not that change or challenge are so bad for the valley soul. It is just that we have had so damned much of it in recent years, with so few apparent benefits, that the people have finally sought a different route. It would be hoped that the champions of this "win - or - destroy" philosophy might also get the message.

It really is possible to elect something less than a screaming liberal or a deaf - mute environmentalist to local public office and still achieve positive results. We can vote new tax dollars for the schools, and have reason to believe honest and dedicated people won't squander or steal the funds. We might even begin to hope that a sewer plant could be expanded without fear of some mythical "growth oriented" idiots squandering the available capacity to the highest residential bidder.

In the quiet of a Tuesday evening well before he was assured victory, Floyd Mori shared a thought with a few close friends. "I'm so glad it's all over. I just grew tired of all the crap, all the negativism."

We suspect that a vast majority of the valley's citizenry feels much the same way. That's why they voted the way they did on Tuesday. It could be a shift away from the old "negative crap" and toward something that speaks positively, confidently for this valley community. It's about time.

Letters to the Editor

Responsive?

Editor, The Times:

An open letter to the editor regarding the enclosed article titled "Sheriff's department very responsive."

Although your paper is quick to print the Sheriff's views, and opinion's of themselves, I have yet to see a story telling it - like it really is, criticizing their responsiveness in any way. A better title for your article might be - "Sheriff's department very un responsive." Here in short is a list of some complaints against the "responsiveness" of the Alameda County Sheriffs:

1. The 1st - complaint is according to sheriff's of Alameda County - The Filstead family have no legal rights at all. We should expect no help or co - operation of any kind, from them. We should not even call them.

2. When they are called, their response is - "Tell him to go soak his head," or "This is the 4th time in 8 months you've called us - we're not babysitters" - or they will say - "Gee, that's to bad - what do you expect us to do about it?"

3. They give out confidential information to anyone who asks. - (regarding the Filstead's) This is supposedly available only for law Enforcement Agents, not the general public.

4. I honestly don't see how they could do so much patroling as stated in your article. Most of the time when I see them, they're sitting down at the firehouse drinking coffee and spreading gossip, and at night they're parked behind the Dublin Square, Romley's and the old cemetary - sleeping. This is why so many crimes go on. I know your paper is uninterested in anything against County Sheriffs but I just thought I'd tell you.

FOCUS/ Appointments

Who do YOU want?

Two public representative bodies in the valley are faced with replacing members who have been elected to higher office (Floyd Mori, Assembly) or will be retiring (Bert Hersevoort, Amador Valley High School District).

It is likely, particularly in the case of the Pleasanton City Council, that the new member will be appointed by council members. The belief, as initially stated in The Times, is that Ken Mercer will be selected. Mercer is currently a member of the parks and recreation commission.

The school district has the option of making an appointment or calling a special election. Don't expect the latter . . .it would cost the taxpayer several thousand dollars and delay seating of Hersevoort's replacement.

Hersevoort, incidentally, confirmed Tuesday what had been a rumor for several months. He retired from his position with Filper Corporation in November and had discussed plans for extensive travel in Europe with fellow Amador board members.

He has two years and one month left on his term while Mori has a year to go. Thus, the persons seated will put in lengthy stints before they stand election.

The question to be answered here is how representative will the choices to be made by the city council and Amador board be? Will the residents of the city and school district be truly served?

Many public bodies will go back to the last election held and consider the first runnerup. If the council and school board were to do this, the names of Roger McLain (council) and Mayo Miller (school board) would be thrown into the pot.

An additional item to consider, in the case of the school board, is area representation.

Hersevoortwas generally considered the spokesman for Dublin and, in fact, is the only resident of that community on the five - man board.

One Amador board member has discounted the idea of such area representation, contending all trustees are quite aware of the needs and problems of THE ENTIRE district.

Perhaps.

This writer, however, would like to hear from more Dublin residents . . . or parents of students attending Dublin and Valley high schools . . . on that score.

We, the public, and those bodies representing us are caught betwixt and between an age old problem. Our democratic system says we establish the process for elections and also the means to replace those retiring, seeking a different office or succumbing while in office.

To hold a special election is a costly thing; yet an arbitrary appointment can be quite undemocratic in the eyes of those who do not like the "new man."

I often wonder how many people would have voted for Nelson Rockefeller for vice - president if it were put to a vote of the total electorate.

This writer recommends that any individual or group with specific persons in mind for the council and Amador school board positions make their feelings known immeadiately.

You may do so by contacting any of the council, via city hall; Mayor Pro-Tem Ed Kinney, Joyce LeClaire, Robert Philcox and Bill Herlihy. Contacts for the Amador board are John Delaney, board president, Wallace Decker, Charles Beazley and Geraldine Donaldson. The latter will not officially become an Amador trustee until the April meeting, though.

Only by having as many members of the public speak up will the best possible choice be ensured.

Sound and Fury

Walt Hecox

Reverend John H. Emerson, pastor of the Asbury United Methodist Church in Livermore is, as he should be, a much more gentle and forgiving soul than this old man.

For that reason I am going to share this piece with the good minister. His gentle touch and forgiving nature should properly offset my somewhat sour mood and harsh thoughts.

There was a time when I was patrolling the sports beat that I frequently asked the same question in one form or another. I wondered audibly just what was different about the kids who attended Amador High School . . . why the girls who were cheerleaders, song and letter girls were always a little, and sometimes a lot, prettier than their opposite numbers from the other schools, the athletic teams more regular winners, the student body more enthusiastic and the whole lot healthier and happier lookin than most kids their age.

"It's a matter of affluence," Skeeter told me. "They eat better, more balanced diets, so they're healthier. Naturally they look better. A lot of it is nutrition."

One way or another the kids at Amador High always showed me some special class and managed to please me more than most. And now I wonder if things have changed.

A little more than two years have passed since I left the world of children's games and settled down in an editor's chair which keeps me tethered far too close to the office. No question about it, I am out of touch. I live in an adult world these days and the time I spend with teenagers is limited to visits with my step - children and even they are growing into their twenties.

For that reason I am not sure about Amador these days. Maybe those Beautiful kids of yesterday don't exist any more. Perhaps the scroungy crew I see moving along Pleasanton's Main Street these days is tryly representative of the student body. Maybe the tattered crew which lounges against parked automobiles, store fronts and fire hydrants are the rule instead of the exception.

Perhaps the three kids who solidly blocked the sidewalk where Spring Street meets Main and exchanged some harsh words when I threaded a precarious path through them have manners typical of an Amador student these days.

I was thinking something like that, about to condemn them, when Rev. Emerson's letter reached me. There has been, apparently, another burglary at his church. What follows is his reaction.

"Last Sunday between 11 and 11:20 a.m. you entered the church taking valuables belonging to Hariette Suits, Sylvia Moon, Alice Schell, Jeanell Pelsor, Cherie Dyer, Lucille Schmalle, Ruth Rosenberg and Janice Emerson. While we don't know your identity at the moment, we have witnesses describing one suspect and possibly a second.

"You stole a sum in excess of $200 plus checkbooks, credit cards, drivers' licenses, etc. Of course, the most valuable things you took are of no use to you: family photos, legal papers, etc. These things can't be replaced.

"Perhaps you are in a desparate financial situation and need the money. If so we hope our money has been used wisely, although there are legal ways of getting help from churches and community agencies without having to violate other persons.

"In the belief that you possess some good qualities, I appeal to you to return the personal articles that are of no value to you. Simply mail them in care of Asbury United Methodist Church, 4743 East Avenue, Livermore, California 94550, or place them in our roadside mailbox.

"You have taught us, along with our January burglary, a hard lesson: we must tighten the security of our church buildings once open to the public day and night in times of need, and that we must secure our personal valuables even when we attend church.

"If not now, at some time you are going to find that your actions will so deeply trouble you as to bring considerable pain to your body, emotions and spirit. Life will become extremely burdensome. Before crime entrans you and ruins a happy, meaningful life, I urge you to seek help from a trusted counselor. Indeed, if you had "ripped off" another valuable article in one lady's purse, the Bible, you might have discovered a source of great spiritual help.

"Certainly the victims of the theft at Asbury Church are upset over what has happened. But we are deeply concerned about you and the conditions that compelled you to engage in theft. We are here to be your friend, not an enemy or victim to be feared. Our prayer is that you will quickly see the damage you have done not only to others but to your own character and make restitution, thereby gaining a whole new sense of self-worth and awareness that you are loved and accepted by God. (signed) John H. Emerson, Pastor, Asbury United Methodist Church, Livermore, California."

Perhaps he never intended it so, but the good Rev. Emerson was preaching a sermon especially for this old man. Read his letter I remembered something about turning the other cheek, casting the first stone and forgiving.

I have needed more than a little forgiving myself on a great many occasions, nor have I always been exactly a picture of sartorial elegance.

So I will retain my faith in the Amador student body, try to see something beautiful in those youngsters on Main Street, turn the other cheek for that kid at Spring and Main who made the gesture with his thumb I do not understand and pray, with Rev. Emerson, the thief who stole from the church and its flock sees the error of his ways.

Meanwhile, Rev. Emerson, let me thank you for reminding me that to err is human, to forgive divine.

round the town

It was one of the nicer valley parties of the year. A former school superintendent and a chamber of commerce manager were among those present from Livermore. Dublin sent an attorney and a doctor, among others. Pleasanton had the largest delegation on hand, but only because the Pleasanton Hotel was host to the Tuesday evening affair.

I counted two State Assemblyman, which was to grow to three before the day was over . . .S. Floyd Mori was about to join the ranks of the Sacramento solons.

A mite more subdued than some "victory parties" I've witnessed in years past. But then again, the whole political scene is low - key these days. Richard Nixon did it to us. His was the last hurrah. Everything that follows will come in guarded applause, keeping one hand in your pocket — the one holding the wallet.

Over at the Howard Johnson Sewerless Motel, Guy Puccio and friends were gathered for the wake. Or at least a few friends were. M. Puccio was not to be seen. Our Pat Widder stopped by, keeping an earlier promise made to the Republican candidate. The newspaper for which Ms. Widder works had of course endorsed Mori.

"What is SHE doing here?" The question was whispered loud enough to reach the offending journalist. Pat says she departed feeling a little sad; not for her own tough journalistic hide, but for the passing of another great political tradition. Even the losers are supposed to be good sports.

We can recall the year we backed Art Hansen and Myron Nevis for the city council. The total Pleasanton vote in those days might run to 500. Everybody was either related, or owed the other guy money. The separation between the good guys and the bad guys was most thin. That year our good guys lost, the badnicks took the prize. We retired with Art and Myron to our house, there to bind our political wounds with a belt or two.

It did not take long for others of our Hansen-Nevis persuasion to track us down. The wake grew in size and spirits. As the householder's stock dwindled, guests would depart, but soon return with a fresh bottle or two. It was around midnight when the first obscene phone call was received.

"Ya, Ya, smarty pants, we told you our guys would beat your guys," or words to that effect. They even sent us a message via Western Union, those nasties. But soon the game grew tiresome. So did the victory party. About one a.m. we detected a flurry at the front door. It was THEM! Come to do us in? Worse. Came to drink our booze.

"We heard the wake was more fun than the victory party. Mind if we join you?" It went down in P - Town history as the best political wake ever. Lasted right through the night. The last, dim memory I have is of William Gale and Les Fields sitting on our couch, consuming the dregs of our refreshments, and fighting once more the great city council election that by then belonged to history. Can't even recall which side either of those gentlemen favored. Doesn't matter anyway. The party's the thing. And we never had a better one, before or since.

Politics was different in those days, somehow. Al Caffodio was the major domo of politics in Livermore. Jack Cronin pretty well ran things in Dublin, although there wasn't much there to run. Charlie McGonegle took charge of all things Sunol. Charlie lost both his hands in World War I. But he didn't lose any of his smarts. Charlie was one tough cookie. Flew a plane, rode a horse. All with hands the Veterans Administration had given him. Nobody had to give him much else.

Charlie used to get himself involved in national poltics. Fighting the veterans' rights, mostly. When he was back east, Charlie Gale would sort of run things. Some say old Judge Charlie was running things regardless. It didn't really matter. Win or lose, up or down, they were all good sports. Buy the winner a brew. Slap a back or two. Then get ready for the next campaign, and figure how to beat the s.o.b. out of office.

Sometimes the action got out of hand. Fisticuffs were not unknown to the valley politics of that happy era. Once the disgruntled jockey gunned down his wife's lover on the steps of the Rose Hotel. "Nothing real serious, or political," folks said. "Just a little lover's quarrel." Lover boy succumbed to lead poisoning. The jockey was hauled away to the local hoosegow. Friends of the jock took up a collection, sent the key witness on a long vacation in Hawaii.

"Case dismissed for want of a witness," the judge said. Even justice had a little humor, in those days.

There was that long - ago incident in a local bar, when a guy clobbered a dame. She had gotten out of hand. The other day there was a slight difference of opinion at a Lions Club party. A gentleman struck a lady. The difference is more than semantic. It isn't right, anymore. It isn't even any fun.

The assembled guests at that Pleasanton Hotel victory party had one big moment. It came when they discovered their beloved leader really does have a sense of humor. He had just been summoned to the microphone, to offer his victory speech. Floyd Mori tucked all 67 inches of himself behind that mike, which was in turn behind the podium, and made his campaign promise.

"The first thing we're going to do in Sacramento is lower the height of all rostrums in the state." It prompted real laughter. Floyd might have been laughing too. No one could tell. Couldn't see his face behind that wall of wood.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) An old, unworkable idea will be discarded for a bright, promising new plan which will bear fruit soon.

GEMINI (Mary 21-June 20) You will profit in some manner today through an influential associate who has your best interest at heart.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Decisions you make today will be well thought out and will be to your advantage. Move now upon situations you've thoroughly studied.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Conditions will be much more harmonious for you today where others are involved. Patch up differences now.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You're going to be getting some good news. It will come from, or through, one you're on a friendly basis with socially.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Financial prospects are brightening, but this is not a signal to loosen the purse strings. Put anything extra aside for later.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Overall conditions are very favorable for you. Ways will be found to overcome obstacles that have thwarted you the past few days.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Things will come your way today without too much effort on your part. Drift with the tide of events.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You can make some giant strides in advancing your newest interest. Concentrate on projects with futuristic elements.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

"Why did you win that third trick?" asked North.

"I guess it was for the same reason that people want to climb a mountain. The trick was there for the taking."

You can get killed climbing mountains. You can go broke taking the wrong trick.

The defense started with three rounds of diamonds. West stuck his rather useless nine of trumps on his partner's trick and South promptly overruffed with dummy's 10 spot. Then he went after trumps. The finesse worked nicely, but when it came down to trying to pick up the king, his majesty refused to fall South wound up losing a trump, two diamonds and a spade.

South should have seen that there was no way to avoid the spade loser, but that there was a proper time to lose it. South should simply have discarded one of dummy's spades, instead of wasting a trump honor on West's nine.

Then when South went after trumps, he would have been able to pick up East's king and eventually use dummy's fourth trump to ruff his last spade.

Pair of Dublin Chamber Board directors quit their posts

DUBLIN — Two members of the Dublin Chamber of Commerce's Board of Directors resigned at Monday night's meeting, Cass Broadbent claiming ill health, and Nick Kavathas because of business commitments outside the area.

Tim Baldwin and Steve Stevens were quickly appointed to the board, with board member Marvin Marciel moving to fill Broadbent's place as secretary.

The board also authorized a program to bill members' dues on semi annual and annual basis.

Several businesses have resigned from the chamber recently, citing the economic crunch as business slumps. The board's move should allow local businesses, whose dues range from $50 to more than $250, to spread their payments across the year and ease their cash-flow burdens.

Members also noted the Mar. 10 deadline for nominations for Citizen of the Year.

While nominations for this year's contest have increased over previous years, the chamber is pushing to include all eligible residents and businesses.

Before closing the board voted to award a $50 Savings Bond to the first runner-up in the Dublin Maid contest, and a $25 bond to the second runner-up.

In previous years, the runners-up received flowers and trophies.

A permanent memento

Tom Fahey (center) of Dublin received a mounted photograph of Mission Viejo while touring the area on a convention recently. Fahey was in Southern California for "Conexpo", a convention sponsored by Caterpillar, international manufacturers of construction equipment.

Convict furlough possible

RICHMOND — Contra Costa County convicts may be able to spend time at a county work - education furlough facility in the future.

A $1 million minimum security facility, a one - story frame and stucco building with a shingle roof, will be going up at 847 Brookside Drive, Richmond, in an area bordered by a creek, a railroad track and a county corporation yard.

Some 72 inmates will spend daytime at work or school and will spend their nights in one of 15 sleeping rooms which will house three to six men each. The center contains a dining room, conference room, study and quiet room, two common rooms, offices, a patio and basketball court.

The project is being financed by the county with addition of a $625,000 grant from the federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA) through the state Criminal Justice Agency. It was designed to meet LEAA's National Clearinghouse guidelines for detention facilities.

The county will advertise for construction bids to be received until 11 a.m. Tuesday, March 25.

Pickpocket slips past security

LIVERMORE — A slick pickpocket may have slipped the Social Security proceeds from a Springtown matron's purse as she shopped in the downtown area, Tuesday.

Paula A. Pltizkow, 69, told police she cashed her $396 Social Security check, buying a $233.86 money order and taking the remainder in cash when she went to shop at the Railroad Avenue T G & Y store.

A black haired, heavy, five-foot six-inch woman in her early 30's asked Pltizkow for help in picking out a fabric "for her mother."

Claiming she was "new to this country," the woman asked Pltizkow to lean over the counter and read the prices for her. When she obliged, the woman hurriedly left the store.

Meanwhile, Joseph F. Duarte told police someone broke into his 210 N. K St., home and stole a shotgun and antique kerosene lamp and porcelain pitcher and basin — and the window removed to enter the house.

Duarte, 49, places the value at $245 as police look for a burglar's home with a new window.

KIRTH FURNITURE FEATURES Thomasville DINING ROOMS & BEDROOMS
del sarto
The continued popularity of Mediterranean furnishings stems from innovative designs such as this new bedroom grouping from Thomasville. Drawers and door fronts are accented with heavy molding. The lower drawers follow a pleasing rectilinear form. The top drawers and handsome doors display the flowing curves of Spanish Baroque. In this flush-to-the-floor design, the end posts and selected doors and drawers feature a plaque overlay to give added authority and interest. Custom designed hardware in a variety of beautiful shapes keynote the cases . . . a massive bar with baroque fluting on doors, scroll motifs on the pulls for drawers. The handsome custom deep brown finish will delight the eye of any furniture connoisseur. With this new bedroom group from Thomasville, new drama and excitement starts today for decorating in Mediterranean style.

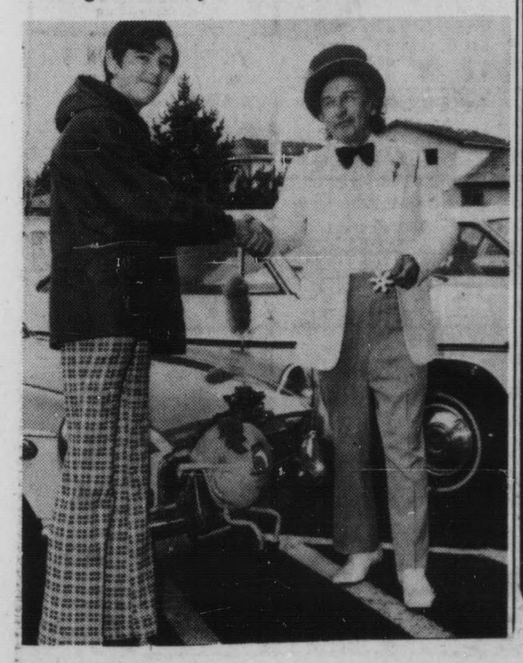
By BILL HAYDEN

It's always a pleasure talking to Nancy Nather at the Livermore Baskin - Robbins '31' Ice Cream store. My waistline suffers, but if anyone is interested in a personal 'expansion' program I can't think of a better or a tastier way of doing it. Ken and Nancy Nather have been at the 1770 First Street location since 1 May 71 and they must have dispensed several tons of frozen goodies. The cone in hand, seen below, was Nutty Coconut which is one of those wonder flavors of the month designed to drive your taste - buds out of their gourds. Ken and Nancy also have a policy of hiring local teen - age help. At the moment there are 11 young people on the payroll.

If you're in the neighborhood of Second Street and South K in Livermore, you might stop at Knodt's Flowers and take a look at the ceramics and beautiful candles on display. Bob Rumberger produces that 'blooming' look whenever he views the attractive merchandise the florist shop now offers. There's a great gimmick in floristry. It's one of the few businesses that still 'deliver' to your door. In addition to real and artificial blooms and greenery, Knodt's has a wide selection of gift ideas, including candy.

The Livermore Chamber dropped in to FUNKY DUDS in on First Street. Lensed between John Conrad on the left and Leslie B. Jacobs, of the Country Studio, on the right is Anny Madsen, manager of the colorful shop. Everyone seems pretty pleased with the lively display on the table, but the quizzical look on the Jacobs' face indicates he's giving serious thought to the effect he might create in that Mickey Mouse shirt.

A. Berkeley Compton, otherwise known as Mr. Bumbleberry, a far - out purveyor of perfectly delicious pie is greeted at the ribbon - cutting of the new Bumbleberry Restaurant in Dublin. The greeter is a younger Hayden who is pretty far - out himself. Bill is president of a Livermore 'Star - Trek' group, so he's not the least bit upset by the 'Bumbleberry' diligently clinging to the bumper. If you haven't tasted Bumbleberry Pie, you haven't lived! At least, that's how young Bill feels, so we'll be spending a lot of happy hours at the new valley eatery on Village Parkway.



FORD'S NEW ECONOLINE VAN, shown above, and Club Wagon are two models of the new family of Econolines that were introduced as 1975 models recently. Body - on - frame construction and longer wheelbases for better ride and stability are among the features.
